Listed & Historic Property

Adams & Remers are pleased to work with the Listed Property Owners Club. We provide advice to their membership and do not charge for our initial consultation. In this way we have assisted many Listed Property Owners Club members from Carlisle to Cornwall.

We have a knowledge and appreciation of Listed Property. Many of our clients own such properties. We know the special nature of the properties and are pleased to advise on any aspect of your day to day life with them.

Whether you are just acquiring a listed property or if you already own one, navigating your way around the planning and listed building consent system can seem daunting and we are very happy to assist and guide you through it.

It is surprising how many people are unaware of the requirement for Listed Building Consent for any non like for like alteration to a listed property. Accordingly there are many such properties that have been altered illegally and at Adams & Remers we can help you put things right or devise an alternative solution. We have many specialist contacts both Surveyors and Architects who can also assist you if you have a project in mind.

The implications of owning a listed property extend further than consent issues. Listed properties are by their nature old and have very special needs both with regards to energy efficiency and insurance and often may be affected by old rights, or obligations. We are happy to advise and assist on any of these issues. Did you know that if you have private drainage via a septic tank without an existing permit from the Environment Agency you will need to register an exemption, or obtain a permit, by January 2012? We can help you if this is a worry.

Listed Properties are also prone to boundary disputes – our team of Litigation experts can assist if you need a hand.

For those who run a business from their listed property again our Commercial and Property teams are here to help you negotiate the legal minefields you may encounter.

We also care about you and your family and have a responsive Private Client team who can assist you with Tax or Trust issues and prepare Wills.

We have offices in both London and the South East and have clients all over the world. We are pleased to offer a personal and highly professional service to all of our clients. Do please call Suzanne Bowman for an informal chat about any queries that you may have.

Listed Building Facts

- In England there are approximately 374,100 Listed Building entries
- Listing connotes significance usually for historical or architectural reasons
- Listing categories are :

I exceptional (2.5% of Listed Buildings)
II* important (5.5% of Listed Buildings)
II of special interest (92% of Listed Buildings)

- Once a building has been listed, it will require Listed Building Consent to demolish, alter or extend the building. It is important to recognise that this is a separate consent from planning permission.
- Listed Consent is required in addition to planning permission or for such works as internal alterations that do not constitute development for which planning permission is normally required.
- The listing of the building may only describe certain features of the building. However the entry itself is not a comprehensive list of all the features and importance.
- Every part of a listed building is protected including the interior and exterior (encompassing any curtilage or external area) and any features not specifically mentioned on the list.
